

PROBABLE CAUSE

On 11-13-2012 as approximately 0045 hours, I received a report of a domestic dispute at Kona Islander Inn, room.#235. Upon arrival I was contacted by Hotel Security who stated a male and female were arguing in room #235. The female guest had called the front desk asking for police. I contacted [REDACTED], F-53, who explained Francesco SFORCA, M-48, was visiting from Italy and staying in her room. SFORCA became verbally abusive towards her, and an argument ensued. During the course of the argument SFORCA pushed [REDACTED] out of the room into the hallway with enough force to cause her to fall to the ground, striking the wall. [REDACTED] stated it did not cause pain, but she was alarmed and harassed by SFORCA verbal abuse and physical contact. [REDACTED] explained she was going to receive "bruising" and showed her left shin. [REDACTED] explained "it is not right for a man to push around a woman". SFORCA made spontaneous statement that he was not going to leave the room because he paid for the room. SFORCA stated he accidentally struck [REDACTED] with his bag. SFORCA was advised of his Miranda Warnings which he stated he did not understand his rights. SFORCA is a Italian National and spoke fluent English during preliminary investigation and booking process.
