I'm indebted to Frank. His latest post has a photo of the famous view of the cottage from Piazza Grimana. It's just as I remember: clear as mud.

View of via della Pergola from where Raffaele and Amanda were checking the house (of which you can't see not even the gate)

To review: Supposedly Toto can identify AK & RS, whom he didn't even know, even in the dark at a distance. He is sure they were "casing" the house on Nov. 1 after the murder. The idea put forward by the prosecutor seems to be that Meredith screamed, they killed her, ran into a public square and stood around for a while, waiting to clean. But first they had to make sure the police weren't going to show up. They did this in public, this waiting around, in full view of Toto.
